ATR VERDICT: Hell's Kitchen has threatened to prove much better than his handicap mark for a while and his attacking nature around this speed track could just see him to best effect. That said, this is his first start for 279 days and he could prove too fresh, which would make him vulnerable late on. King's Odyssey had a consistent year, finishing third on all four outings, and remains on the same mark after his effort behind The Storyteller at the Cheltenham Festival. Romain De Senam, Warriors Tale, and War Sound all warrant respect, but the vote goes to SOME INVITATION. The son of Presenting comes with plenty of risks attached, as he was last seen disappointing in a competitive handicap at Uttoxeter in May, but he has always gone well fresh and looks fairly handicapped to strike. He is 5lb lower than his effort in a Cheltenham handicap over 3m2f in April when he just didn't get home after travelling strongly for most of the contest.

Top Tip: SOME INVITATION (11)

Watch out for: KING'S ODYSSEY (4)
